Prin. Your money. Set upon them, they all run away, and Fal-Poin. Villaines. staffe after a blow or two runs away too, leaning the bootie behinde them.*

Prin. Got with much ease. Now merrily to horse: the theeues are scattered, and posselt with feare so strongly that they dare not meete each other, each takes his fellow for an officer, away good Ned, Falstaffe sweares to death, and lards the leane earth as he walkes along: wert not for laughing I should pittie him.

Poin. How the rogue roard. Exeunt.

Enter Hotspur solus, reading a letter.

But for mine owne part my Lord, I could bee well contented to bee there, in respect of the loue I beare your house.

He could be contented, why is he not then? in the respect of the loue he beares our house: he shoves in this, he loues his owne barne better then he loues our house. Let me see some more.

The purpose you undertake is dangerous.

Why thats certaine, tis dangerous to take a cold, to sleepe, to drinke, but I tel you (my Lord foole) out of this nettle danger, we plucke this flower safety.

The purpose you undertake is dangerous, the friends you haue named Uncertaine, the time it selfe vnforted, and your whole plot too light, for the counterpoise of so great an opposition.

Say you so: say you so. I say vn to you againe you are a shallow cowardly hinde, and you lye: what a lack-braine is this? by the Lord our plot is a good plot, as euer was laid, our friends true & constant: a good plot, good friends, & full of expectatiō:
an excellēt plot, very good friends; what a frostie spirited rogue is this? why, my Lord of Yorke commends the plot, & the generall course of the Action. Zounds & I were now by this rascal, I could braine him with his Ladies fanne. Is there not my father, my vncle, and my selfe, Lord Edmund Mortimer, my Lorde of Yorke, & Owen Glendower is there not besides the Dowglas: haue I not al their letters to meet me in armes by the ninth of the next month, and are they not som of them set forward already: what a pagan raskall is this, and infidel? Ha, you shall see now in very sinceritie of feare and cold heart, wil he to the King, and lay open al our proceedings. O, I could diuide my

my selfe, & go to buffets, for mouing such a dish of sk with so honorable an action. Hang him, let him tell we are prepared. I will set forward to night. Enter How now Kate, I must leaue you within these two h

Lady O my good Lord, why are you thus alone?
For what offence haue I this fortnight bin
A banisht woman from my Harries bed?
Tell me, sweet Lord, what is't that takes from t hee Thy stomack, pleasure, and thy golden sleepe?
Why dost thou bend thine eyes vpon the earth?
And start so often when thou sitst alone?
Why hast thou lost the fresh bloud in thy cheekes?
And giuen my treasures and my rights of thee
To thicke eyd musing, and curst melacholly?
In my faint slumbers, I by thee watcht,
And heard thee murmur tales of yron warres, Speake tearmes of manage to thy bounding steed, Cry courage to the field. And thou hast talkt
Of sallies, and retires, trenches, tents,
Of pallizadoes, frontiers, parapets,
Of basilisks, of canon, culuerin,
Of prisoners ranfome, and of souldiers slaine,
And all the current, of a heddy fight,
Thy spirit within thee hath bin so at war,
And thus hath so bestird thee in thy sleepe,
That beds of sweat hath stood vpon thy brow
Like bubbles in a late disturbed streame,
And in thy face strange motions haue apeard,
Such as we see when men restraine their breath, On some great sodaine hast. O what portents are the Some heauy busines hath my Lord in hand,
And I must know it, else he loues me not.

Hot what ho, is Gilliams with the packet gone?

Ser. He is, my Lord, an houre agoe.

Hot. Hath Butler brought those horses from the Ser. One horse, my Lord, he brought euen now.

Hot. What horse? a roane? a crop-eare, is it not?

Ser. It is my Lord,
